Discussing the Importance of a Healthy Diet

A healthy diet is essential to our well-being. Simply put, food is our bodies' source of fuel. Our bodies need enough fuel, and the right fuel, to be able to properly perform important daily functions from breathing to concentrating to fighting diseases. With insufficient or poor quality fuel, our bodies start to function poorly.

If we fuel our body right with proper nutrition we experience an improved sense of well-being, increased energy, improved concentration, better moods, and maintenance of the immune system. Considering all the above, proper nutrition leads to improved performance (and therefore heightened self-esteem among other benefits) whether at work, at school, on the football pitch, or in the gym.

If the benefits of a healthy diet aren't convincing enough, the risks of an unhealthy diet certainly are. Unhealthy diets can lead to obesity (which comes with a host of health problems), immunodeficiency diseases (a condition in which the body is unable to fight cancer or infectious diseases), chronic diseases such as diabetes, and a poor sense of well-being. A poor sense of well-being includes poor sleep, a lack of energy, frequent headaches, mood swings, etc. All of which lead to poor performance and low self-esteem.

It's clear that nutrition plays an important role in our lives. A proper diet and nutrition induces a host of benefits that result in improved performance and sense of self-worth. A poor diet, on the other hand, leads to a multitude of health problems that result in poor performance, low self-esteem, and life-threatening diseases.

So, why is it that 30% of the world's population is obese (healthdata.org)? Why is it that the percentage of adults diagnosed with diabetes has nearly doubled from 4.7% to 8.5% from 1980 to 2014? Why are there more than 41 million overweight children in the world (World Health Organization)?

Here's why we still suffering from obesity and other dietary problems.

There are many reasons why much of the world still suffers from a poor diet. Many of which are issues that cannot be solved immediately or independently. For example, in many countries, it's sufficiently cheaper to eat fast food, processed foods, and pre-prepared meals high in sugar or sodium and in calories. Furthermore, as technology advances, both work and transportation are becoming more sedentary. The combination of these two inevitable dilemmas results in higher calorie intake than expenditure and, in turn, weight gain and other dietary problems.

While it's true that the world in which we currently live fosters obesity and the above issues are beyond our immediate control, there is another problem at large that we can fix both independently and immediately: Many of us are confused about what a proper and healthy diet consists of, and that's not our fault.

Since the 1930s, fad diets have been flooding the consumer markets promising weight loss and great physical health without any scientific evidence and with just one objective – to sell. As these diets became prevalent, society started focusing less on overall nutritional health and healthy living and more on unsustainable diets based on pseudoscience.

Furthermore, many myths emerged which changed the way we think about food. What was once considered healthy and normal became a dietary evil, and what was once known as unhealthy is now promoted as healthy. The low-fat/no fat diet is perhaps the most world-wide example of how a fad diet created a world-wide myth that a necessary macronutrient with countless benefits is actually detrimental to our health. Unfortunately, we are constantly being fed contradictory information about nutrition and health from unreliable sources which not only affect us, but also our children.

Child obesity – exploring causes, effects, and solutions

These contradictions and the general confusion about what is or isn't healthy not only affects us. It also greatly affects our children who depend on us for their daily nutrition.

Obesity in children and adolescents has risen tenfold in the past four decades. More than 41 million of the world's children under five years old are obese (World Health Organization). Approximately 12.5 million or 17 percent of children aged 2 through 19 are considered overweight according to the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Overweight and obese children are likely to remain overweight or obese as they enter adulthood, and they face a host of life-threatening diseases like diabetes and cardiovascular diseases (World Health Organization).

However, these diseases are preventable if we simply educate ourselves and our children about the importance of a healthy diet, what a healthy diet consists of, and, of course, the importance of exercise. Just as we are responsible for our children's diet, it's our responsibility to get our children involved in sports or to get them to partake in at least one hour of physical activity. These contradictions and the general confusion about what is or isn't healthy not only affects us. It also greatly affects our children who depend on us for their daily nutrition.

Not to mention, for young athletes, proper nutrition is essential. Proper nutrition leads to optimal performance on the pitch or court, prevents injuries, and ensures that the young athletes have enough energy left over to complete the rest of their daily activities. All of which lead to an overall positive experience with sport which means these children will be more likely to continue to practice sport into adulthood.

Ultimately, our children depend on us to educate them and to advise them about healthy living. Therefore, the solution for both ourselves and our children is to educate ourselves about nutrition and to always make sure that all the information we read comes from reliable sources. Don't worry though. At Ertheo, we've already done all the research for you.

Our contribution - Ertheo presents one month of meal plans for young athletes.

Ertheo is a sports and education agency dedicated to helping youth athletes reach their full potential as both athletes and upstanding citizens. We do so by not only offering the best sports-education programs in the world, but also by sharing helpful information and advice with young athletes and their parents.

That being said, we recognize that child and adolescent obesity is a worldwide dilemma that can be solved by educating parents and their children about nutrition and sport and by supporting their quest for accurate and reliable information. We also recognize that proper nutrition for young athletes is essential to their performance, and in turn, their relationship with sport as they enter adulthood.

To support our mission, and to support your quest for reliable and accurate nutrition advice, we've put together a full calendar of meal plans for young athletes and their families. Each meal plan has been submitted to us by a credited nutritionist or dietician and has been created with young athletes in mind. However, we designed the meal plans to be versatile so that all members of the family can use this calendar to achieve a healthy diet.

In fact, versatility is main reason why we decided not to include portion sizes in the calendar. By adjusting the portion sizes of each meal, this calendar can be used for young children, adolescents, and adults of all different heights, weights, and daily physical activity levels. Each plan includes breakfast, lunch, dinner, and a snack. Of course, if one of the meals doesn't seem particularly appetizing, you could switch it out for another meal that appeals to you. The calendar is very versatile. Use it whatever way works for you!

Furthermore, to achieve full transparency (so you know exactly who created the meal plan and their credentials), we have written short biographies about each nutritionist which includes their credentials. That way, you know exactly where the information is coming from, and you can do additional research if you choose to. You'll find a link at the bottom of each meal plan on the calendar that you can visit for more information regarding the meal plan's author.

Lastly, many nutritionists went out of their way to include nutrition advice and tips for young athletes, and even complete recipes to accompany the meal plans they submitted to us. We simply could not withhold such valuable information from you. So, we decided to put together this ebook complete with each contributor's biography and credentials, tips and advice for young athletes, recipes, and of course a daily meal plan.

We sincerely hope you enjoy each meal and that you feel the benefits of your new healthy diet.

Sincerely,
Our team at Ertheo

Elena Perea studied exact sciences in the early 2000s. Later, she moved to England where she attended Plaskett Nutritional Medicine College and earned her title as a nutritional therapist. Currently, Perea is responsible for translating Dr. Plaskett's courses into Spanish and sharing her work with Spain and South America. Furthermore, Perea teaches classes at the Institute for Holistic Nutrition and runs her own orthomolecular nutritional practice in Madrid. Perea's mission is to share her knowledge with other therapists and promote nutritional therapy in other countries.

MENU

Breakfast

- Ham omelette

Lunch

- Sardines and sprouts

Dinner

- Quiche with carrots and legumes

Snack

- Homemade sugar free nut bar

Perea highly recommends that children don't eat too much animal protein, flours, or refined carbohydrates. She does admit, however, that it's difficult to avoid feeding children these foods because, in general, children really like these foods.

Perea suggests that parents feed their children plenty of legumes, whole grains, and wide variety of vegetables. Since we all know that feeding children vegetables can be a chore, Perea makes the following helpful suggestions: add vegetables to hamburgers, quiches, meatballs, sauces and purees.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"There are some foods that I would never recommend like sugar or processed foods but I also wouldn't prohibit them. I like to keep a little flexibility in the diet. If you prohibit them, it creates the opposite effect and children go looking for what's prohibited."

RECIPES:

SUGAR FREE NUT BARS

INGREDIENTS (15 BARS)

- ½ cup of coconut oil (extra virgen)
- ¼ cup of nut butter (almond, hazelnut, or cashew)
- ¼ cup of yam/sweet potato syrup + 1 extra tsp
- 2 cups of oatmeal flakes (gluten free) / (or quinoa flakes)
- ½ cup of shredded coconut
- ¼ cup of vegan protein powder
- ¾ cup of nuts (e.g. almonds) roughly chopped (nuts should be previously soaked before use)
- ½ cup of sunflower seeds (previously soaked)
- ½ cup of pumpkin seeds (previously soaked)
- 1/3 cup of sesame seeds
- 1 or 2 Tbsp of chia seeds

INSTRUCTIONS:

Preheat the oven to 160°C. Grease an oven tray with coconut oil. In a frying pan, heat the coconut oil, nut butter, sweet potato syrup, and a pinch of salt (optional) over low heat until mixed well. Take the mixture off the heat and add oatmeal (quinoa) flakes, coconut, protein powder, and half the nuts and seeds. Mix well. Spread the mixture out evenly across the bottom of the greased oven tray. Sprinkle the rest of the fruits and nuts on top. Pour the extra tsp of sweet potato syrup over on top as well. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes until brown. Let cool and cut in rectangles or squares.

PORRIDGE WITH SPANISH HAM OR PROSCIUTTO AND EGG

INGREDIENTS (2 PEOPLE)

- 2 tsp of coconut oil, olive oil, or butter
- 1 small onion diced
- 1 cup of oatmeal flakes, cooked quinoa, or cooked Saracen wheat.
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of chicken broth (or other broth)
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of Spanish ham or prosciutto
- 2 poached eggs

INSTRUCTIONS:

Heat the oil in a pan at medium heat and sauté the onion until it's transparent. Add the oatmeal flakes (or alternative option), the broth (if you are using oatmeal flakes add an extra $1 \frac{1}{4}$ cup of water). Let cook for 6 – 8 minutes until all the liquid is absorbed. Mix the porridge with the Spanish ham or prosciutto and divide into two bowls. Add a poached egg to each bowl and season to taste.

QUICHE OF CARROTS AND LEGUMES

INGREDIENTS (2 PEOPLE)

Filling:

- 1 Tbsp of coconut oil
- 175 grams of sliced carrots
- ½ tsp of turmeric
- 1 handful of chopped parsley
- 1 Tbsp of capers (olives)
- 30 grams of white almonds, chopped
- 1 egg (or 50 grams of substitute such as yogurt, kefir, or coconut milk)
- Sea salt (Himalayan sea salt) to taste
- Ground black pepper

The base:

- 150 grams of cooked white beans (equal to 75 grams uncooked)
- 1 egg (or 50 grams of egg substitute)
- 1 Tbsp olive oil

INSTRUCTIONS

Soak the white beans for 8 – 10 hours. Then, cook the white beans for one hour. (Or use precooked white beans from a jar.) Preheat the oven to 175°C. Use a blender or a food processor to mix the white beans with the egg, the oil, and salt (optional). Grease a round oven tray with coconut oil and mold the base of the quiche onto the bottom of the tray. Bake for 15 minutes at 175°C. In a frying pan, heat the coconut oil and add the turmeric. Add the carrots and sauté for a few minutes. Add the parsley, chopped almonds and the capers (or olives). Beat the egg (or use the egg substitute) and mix it with the slightly sautéed carrots and spices mixture. Pour the egg and carrot mixture into the base of the quiche. Bake at 175°C for 35 minutes.

SARDINES WITH SPROUTS

INGREDIENTS (2 PEOPLE)

- 3 cups of pumpkin or sweet potato sliced with the skills
- 2 Tbsp of olive oil
- 8 fresh sardines
- ½ sliced red onion
- 2 cloves of garlic
- 1 lemon (half cut into wedges, half whole)
- Handful of fresh thyme, oregano, or rosemary,
- Chili flakes
- Black pepper and salt

INSTRUCTIONS

Preheat the oven to 200°C. Grease an oven tray with olive oil and place the sweet potato or pumpkin, season to taste, and roast for 20 to 25 minutes. Place the sardines on top of the sweet potatoes and add the onion, garlic, herbs, chili flakes, black pepper, salt (optional), and the lemon wedges. Squeeze the lemon juice over top, add the rest of the olive oil, and roast for 10 additional minutes.

Felipe advises parents to improve the food that they are feeding their children for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and as snacks. He sent us a list of 10 pieces of advice that he calls the "Ten commandments of young athletes." See his recommendations below.

The Ten Commandments: Healthy habits for the youth athlete

- 1. Use olive oil as your principal source of fat
- 2. Consume vegetables, fruits, legumes, and nuts in abundance
- 3. Carbohydrates, originating from cereals and grains (bread, pasta, rice, potatoes, etc.) should make up 55% of your daily caloric intake.
- 4. Limit consumption of packaged, processed, or factory baked-goods.
- 5. Limit consumption of soda. If you drink soda, choose light or zero.
- 6. Limit consumption of fast food, pizza, hamburgers, etc.
- 7. Consume dairy products daily, mostly yogurt and cheese (fresh cheese is better than curated cheeses high in fat).
- 8. Consume red meat in moderation and, if possible, as a supplement in stews and other recipes.
- 9. Consume fish and eggs in abundance.
- 10. Drink between 2 and 2.5 L of water daily.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"When nutrition is unbalanced or insufficient, the organism suffers an initial series of metabolic, biochemical, and physiological changes which could contribute to a less than optimal sport performance."

Then, in 2106, she moved to Sydney to work in The Hotel School where she worked to design nutritional solutions for cafeterias in schools and hospitals. Currently, she continues to carry out her mission to educate about nutrition and food at her own private practice in Murcia.

MENU

Breakfast

- Natural orange juice
- Oatmeal
- Dried apricot

Lunch

- Cheese stuffed tomatoes
- Chickpeas
- Whole wheat toast
- Yogurt

Dinner

- Salad topped with avocado, mushrooms, and ginger
- Beef tenderloin
- Whole wheat toast

Snack

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"Many parents misuse food as a way to punish or reward their children when they behave well or poorly. This attitude is wrong. Food shouldn't be used as a way to correct the behavior of children."

RECIPES

NATURAL ORANGE JUICE WITH OATMEAL HONEY PANCAKES AND NUTS

INGREDIENTS

- Natural orange juice (110 g)
- Egg whites (2 eggs or 70 g)
- Olive oil (1 Tbsp or 5 g)
- 0 calorie sweetener (2 g)
- Oats (4 heaping Tbsp or 40 g)
- Honey (10 g)
- Dried apricot (40 g)

INSTRUCTIONS

Thoroughly beat the egg whites. Add oats and continue to beat until smooth. Preheat a frying pan with 2 – 3 drops of olive oil. Remove oil with paper towel. Pour the oatmeal and egg white mixture onto the pan. When ready, flip the pancake and let cook through. Serve hot.

CHEESE STUFFED TOMATOES

INGREDIENTS

- Garlic (1 clove or 5 g)
- Onion or scallion (1/4 onion or 45 g)
- Parsley (20 g or to taste)
- Black pepper (1 g or to taste)
- Raw tomato (4 slices or 90 g)
- Brugos cheese 0% fat (140 g)
- Salt (1g or to taste)
- Dried dill (5 g or to taste)

INSTRUCCIONES:

- 1. In a bowl, mix onion, parsley, dill, and peeled and diced garlic clove.
- 2. Add diced fresh cheese, salt and pepper.
- 3. Cut out the stem of the tomatoes. Cut four vertical slices from the top to the base of the tomato dividing the tomato in wedges without entirely separating the wedges.
- 4. Open the wedges enough to fill them with the cheese mixture. Season with parsley.

CHICKPEAS AND SPINACH

INGREDIENTS

- Olive oil (1 Tbsp or 7 g)
- Garlic (7 g)
- Onion or scallion (1 small plate or 100 g)
- Dried chickpeas (70 g)
- Salt (1 g or to taste)

INSTRUCTIONS

Let the chickpeas soak overnight. Sauté the chopped onion, garlic, and olive oil. Add spinach and chickpeas and cook for 30 minutes in a pressure cooker.

Lidia Tormo's passion for nutrition and education led her to open the "Nutritional School" where she teaches parents about the importance of nutrition for young children. She earned the equivalent of a B.S. in Human Nutrition and Dietetics and in Primary Education and has participated in the six CODiNuCoVa conferences about nutrition pre-contraception, during pregnancy, during breastfeeding, and early infancy. Tormo also collaborates actively with Fassthink coordinating various health courses.

MENU

Breakfast

- Glass of whole milk or vegetable milk
- Whole milk natural yogurt
- Bowl of fruit with dried nuts and seeds
- If still hungry, whole wheat toast with homemade hazelnut butter and a banana or whole wheat toast with avocado and tomato

Lunch

- Pasta with pesto sauce topped with chicken and vegetables

Dinner

- Veggie burger with vegetables and beetroot sauce

Snack

- Oatmeal energy cookies and nuts

The belief that breakfast is the most important meal of the day is a bit far from Lidia Tormo's thinking. Her advice is simply to eat what we'd like to for breakfast but to make sure it's healthy. She doesn't believe in a magic breakfast formula.

Additionally, Tormo stresses the importance of consuming an abundance of vegetables. In her Nutrition School, she recommends that vegetables cover at least half the plate at every meal and that the lunch or dinner table is always complete with a salad to share.

Knowing how to shop for food is essential to maintaining a healthy diet. Lidia Tormo recommends that parents buy vegetable drinks that don't contain added sugars and that they buy whole grain foods like whole grain bread rather than white bread.

In regards to young athlete nutrition, Tormo doesn't support the consumption of energy bars to optimize performance. Rather, she stresses the importance of hydration and reminds us that fruit can also be quite hydrating.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"I don't know what to do to make them eat vegetables. Just cook them so that they enjoy them. You don't have to serve large portions; rather, what's important is that children eat vegetables daily. You can try cooking them different ways and introducing them into your children's diet little by little, but don't force them to eat them if they don't like them. Awaken their curiosity by letting them help out in the kitchen!"

RECETAS:

PASTA WITH PESTO SAUCE TOPPED WITH CHICKEN AND VEGETABLES

INGREDIENTS

- Chicken cutlet (chopped)
- Zucchini (diced)
- Cherry tomatoes (halved)
- Whole grain pasta (any kind)
- Pepper
- Laurel

For the sauce:

- Fresh basil
- 1 garlic clove (peeled)
- Cashews (50 g)
- Almonds (50 g)
- Extra virgin olive oil

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Boil a large pot of water with salt and a laurel leaf for the pasta. Once the water comes to a boil, add the pasta and cook for as long as the box indicates.
2. Meanwhile, get started on the sauce. Mash together all the sauce ingredients until a paste-like texture is achieved. For a more liquidly sauce, add more water or olive oil. Set aside.
3. In a frying pan, sauté the chicken. When the chicken is fully cooked, add the zucchini and cherry tomatoes. Salt and pepper to taste.
4. When the pasta is cooked to liking, drain it and pour it into the frying pan. Add the pesto sauce.
5. Mix well and serve. Once plated, add shredded or grated cheese to your taste.

Note: Good alternatives to chicken include wild salmon or tofu.

VEGGIE BURGER WITH VEGETABLE TEMPURA AND BEETROOT SAUCE

INGREDIENTS

For the veggie burger:

- Cooked green beans (from a jar works well)
- Oats
- 2 – 3 cloves of garlic (finely chopped)
- Onion (finely chopped)
- Green pepper (finely chopped)
- Parsley
- Whole wheat flour
- Extra virgin olive oil

For the beetroot sauce:

- Cooked beetroot
- Onion
- Apple
- Extra virgin olive oil

For the vegetable tempura:

- Any vegetables (Cut into strips: carrots, zucchini, eggplant, pepper, etc. Sliced: artichokes, onions, etc. Added in pieces: broccoli, cauliflower, etc.)
- Chickpea flour.
- Water
- Extra virgin olive oil

INSTRUCTIONS

- 1. Veggie burger: Heat a little bit of olive oil in a frying pan and saute the onion, garlic, and green pepper. Smash the green beans with a fork and add to the stir-fry. Add the oats. The texture shouldn't be excessively moist. Finely, add the chopped parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Add whole wheat flour and shape the mixture into the form of a hamburger. Finish off by baking the burger for 15 to 20 minutes in the oven at 180°C or frying it with a bit of olive.
- 2. Vegetables: Mix the chickpea flour little by little with very cold water. When the texture is no longer liquidly, add the vegetables to the mixture. Drain the vegetables and fry them in very hot olive oil (hot but not smoking). When cooked, remove and place on absorbent paper to eliminate extra oil. Serve hot.
- 3. Beetroot sauce: Stir-fry the onion. When golden, add the peeled and diced apple. After a few minutes, add the diced beetroot. Crush/beat/blend until the mixture has a sauce texture. Salt and pepper to taste.

ENERGY COOKIES

INGREDIENTS

- Oat flour (79 g)
- Ground almonds (40g)
- Hazelnuts (50g)
- Walnuts (50 g)
- Banana (1)
- Dates (10)
- Milk (or vegetable milk)
- Cinnamon (to taste)

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Grind the hazelnuts and walnuts and mix them with the rest of the dry ingredients in a bowl. Set aside.
2. Mash the banana and the dates with the milk until you get a creamy paste mixture. (Peel the dates beforehand for an even smoother texture.)
3. Combine the two mixtures and knead until all the ingredients are well mixed into smooth and consistent dough.
4. Put the dough in the refrigerator for 10 minutes. Preheat the oven to 170°C.
5. Cover a baking tray with wax paper and start to form the dough into cookies (in the form of a ball, lightly flattened (or however you like them! Let your imagination take over!))
6. Put cookies in the oven for 10 – 15 minutes. If you'd like them crunchier, use less dough for each cookie and flatten them more. Savor the flavor!

Note: If you're allergic to nuts, you can make them without nuts. Just use oats, bananas, and dates. They're just as tasty!

M^a Teresa Hernández García doesn't believe that parents should insist that their children eat their food because it could lead to parents simply choosing food that their kids will like and eat. She also doesn't believe that food should be used to reward or punish good or bad behavior.

Hernandez Garcia recommends that children and adults alike drink water with each of the meals above in order to avoid food addictions and extra weight gain from sugary drinks.

To help mothers and fathers feed their children, Natalia Calvet has put together 10 pieces of the best advice:

- 1. Set an example. If you want your children to eat healthy, the first step is for you to eat healthy. They'll follow your lead.
- 2. Don't force your children to eat. Always offer them a variety of healthy options and let them decide. Try to try new things, but don't force it.
- 3. Don't use food as a privilege or punishment. It creates an unhealthy relationship with food.
- 4. Base their diet on real food (without tags). Highly processed foods are a sugar bomb, refined flours, low quality fats, high in salt: pastries, including those labels as whole wheat or 0%, soft drinks, yogurts (except natural and without added sugars), chocolate (except with 80% cacao or more), snacks, pre-prepared plates, juices, bread (except high quality whole wheat bread)... those foods shouldn't be a part of our daily diet.
- 5. The foundation of a proper diet for children, adolescents, and adults should be greens and vegetables.
- 6. Consume enough protein and healthy fats at every meal: eggs, fish, meat, legumes, nuts, avocado, olives, seeds...
- 7. Grains and cereals should always be used as a side dish and not the main dish. They should make up a maximum of 25% of our diets. In general, we eat too many grains and cereals.
- 8. Involve your children in the kitchen and explain to them the importance of a healthy diet.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"Eating is necessary and can be pleasurable. Exercising is also necessary and can be pleasurable. Let's teach our children to do both calmly and healthily."

Thanks to her experience creating menus for school cafeterias, Silvia Diets has put together 5 pieces of advice for parents of young athletes:

1. Use extra virgin olive oil to cook and marinate whenever possible. Other acceptable fat sources include: avocado, and nuts and seeds.
2. Consume fresh produce in abundance: fruits, vegetables (seasonal), legumes, nuts and seeds.
3. Consume wheat and whole grain products to avoid refined grains.
4. Limit consumption of highly processed foods such as: pizzas, processed meats, soft drinks, white bread, store bought juice, potato chips, cookies, pastries, sugary cereals and cereal bars, ice cream, sugary dairy products, etc.)
5. The main drink so be water. Drink according to thirst. Natural fruit juices should be consumed occasionally.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"In general, there shouldn't be a big difference between the diet of an infant and that of an adult. Every day, I see families that cook different foods because they adapt the preparation of the food to different family members. They believe that children should eat differently just because they're children."

With two degrees, one from the superior school of Dietetics and Nutrition and another from the superior school of Pharmacy, Sara Garcés is an expert in nutrition. She describes herself as a fan of all things science and nutrition. In fact, this great interest in science and nutrition led her to publish her first book Eat, Live, or Die, a novel about nutrition that invites us to participate in the lives of eight very different characters.

MENU

Breakfast

- A glass of milk with cinnamon
- Whole wheat toast with homemade hazelnut butter

Lunch

- Chickpea salad with tomato, cucumber, red pepper, corn, avocado, and olive oil
- Piece of fruit

Dinner

- Grilled wild asparagus and zucchini
- Two fried eggs (free range)

Snack

- Natural yogurt with nuts and fruit
- Whole wheat sandwich with hummus and pepper

According to Sara Garcés, a child's diet should be based on the daily consumption of vegetables and fruits. Young children need a lot of energy to get through the day, and Garcés recommends feeding children nuts and legumes to provide them with high quantities of fiber and vegetable protein they need to stay energized and alert in school and at practice. She also recommends that young athletes consume whole grain foods rather than white, refined grains, and that they consume plenty of fish, eggs, and lean meat as all three foods are great sources of animal protein.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"There are plenty of reasons to teach young children about the importance of eating correctly and to steer them away from bad habits - the most important being that eating poorly could lead to serious health problems in the future."

Silvana Vigo considers herself an active person with many passions. She centers her work around nutrition, sports, and hiking. She even organizes different hiking routes so that clients can get to know all the hidden beauties of Spain.

MENU

Breakfast

- Smoothie with vegetable protein and nuts
- Sandwich with lunch meat

Lunch

- Hake fish with steamed vegetables
- Fruit

Dinner

- Steamed vegetables with potato

Snack

- Tuna sandwich

A sandwich as a snack is a tradition that some have condemned in recent years. However, Silvana Vigo supports the great number of nutritionists that hold the belief that a low calorie sandwich with lunch meat is exactly what children need to face the afternoon full of energy. Vigo says 15% of the energy of a child's complete diet should come from the snack.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"Each person is their own unique world, and each personal nutritional plan should be just as unique. It's important to adapt these plans to the person, not the other way around. The ideal would be to get to know a person's background and history including their previous diets and problems that have occurred while dieting, then to use that information to create a personalized plan."

WHOLE WHEAT PERSONAL PITA PIZZA

INGREDIENTS

- 1 whole wheat pita
- 1-2 tablespoons of pizza sauce (we use Classico Tomato Basil)
- 1-2 tablespoons pesto (Classico has a pesto as well)
- 1-2 oz reduced fat mozzarella cheese

Toppings

- Broccoli
- Onion, diced
- Bell peppers, diced
- Black olives
- White mushrooms
- Pepperoni
- Oregano

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
2. Option #1: Place tomato sauce in center of pita and use the pesto for the crust or Option #2: Do a tomato and pesto swirl.
3. Sprinkle some of the peppers and onion onto the sauce. This will allow the sauce and crust get a little more flavor.
4. Sprinkle cheese evenly on your pizza and add toppings.
5. Cook pizza for 15-20 minutes, or when pizza is cooked through.

CHICKEN TERIYAKI

INGREDIENTS

- Yield: 4 servings
- 4 chicken thighs with skin
- 1/2 bottle Lawry's Teriyaki Marinade (12 oz bottle)
- 3 garlic cloves, diced
- 1 pineapple, sliced or chopped
- Salt, to taste
- Pepper, to taste

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F.
2. Season chicken thighs with salt and pepper.
3. Cover chicken with teriyaki marinade.
4. Add garlic and sliced pineapple (you can squeeze the juice from a couple of slices of pineapple to add an extra burst of pineapple flavor).
5. Let marinade for 30 minutes.
6. Heat pan to medium-high heat. Once hot, place thighs on pan (skin-side down). This will allow you to get a nice crispy skin.
7. Once the skin is crispy (about 3-5 minutes), flip thighs over (2-3 minutes).
8. Place thighs on a non-stick baking sheet and bake for about 10 minutes or until chicken is well done

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

1. Always listen to your body. If you experience fatigue, gas, bloating, joint pain, sinus congestion etc. after eating, it's time to re-evaluate your diet.
2. Always purchase organic when it comes to "The Dirty Dozen" produce. Check out ewg.org for more information.
3. Optimal health means having a daily bowel movement each day! No success? Let's dive deeper into diet.
4. If you experience trouble recovering from workouts, an injury that just won't heal, or chronic colds/flu that seem to be more frequent than what your teammates experience, it's time to use food to boost the immune system!
5. Only focus on sports drinks when you are participating in moderate to intense activity for 45-60 minutes or more. Sipping sports drinks in school all day will cause more harm than good.

RECIPES:

HOMEMADE COOKIES

INGREDIENTS (20 COOKIES)

- 200 g of hazelnuts
- 100 g of raisins
- 50 g of dark chocolate (>70% cacao)
- a splash of milk or vegetable/nut milk
- 2 Tbsp of pure cacao powder (unsweetened)
- 1 Tbsp of flax seeds
- 1 Tbsp of chia seeds
- 1/2 tsp of baking soda
- 1 tsp of cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp of salt

INSTRUCIONS

1. First, let the raisins soak in water for 30 minutes.
2. Soak the flax and chia seeds in 4 Tbsp of water for 15 minutes until they acquire a jelly-like consistency.
3. Preheat the oven to 180°C.
4. I carried out the entire recipe with a food processor which meant I was able to have the dough ready in just a few minutes.
5. Chop the chocolate and set it aside to be incorporated at the end.
6. Chop the hazelnuts with a splash of milk and add the cacao powder, baking soda, cinnamon, and salt.
7. Drain the raisins and pour them into the jelly-like seed mixture. Add this paste to the other mixture and mix well.
8. Add the chocolate and mix again.
9. Form the dough into cookie balls and place on a greased oven tray.
10. Place in oven for about 10 minutes. Time is adjustable. Adapt the baking time to your liking and watch closely to make sure they don't burn.
11. Let cool so they acquire a crispy texture and ENJOY!

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"One of the foundations of a healthy diet is avoiding processed products. This can be quite difficult when we're craving sweets. Luckily, with one trip to the grocery store and a little creativity, we can make our own sweets from all natural products."
